MIDNIGHT OIL HONOURED

for Outstanding Services to Australian Music

Midnight Oil have always played by their own rules. Decades on, their rock n' roll fury has remained intact – from when they first started making music together at school in 1972 to the final note played on their recent Great Circle World Tour. Always more than just a rock band Midnight Oil are environmental crusaders, social justice activists and powerful songwriters. In 2001, 100 music industry heavyweights polled by APRA placed Beds Are Burning at No #3 on the list of the Top 10 Best Australian songs of all time.

Now APRA AMCOS has awarded Midnight Oil the 2018 Ted Albert Award for Outstanding Services to Australian Music at the 2018 APRA Music Awards. Spawned from the northern beaches of Sydney, APRA Chair Jenny Morris said, "Midnight Oil's uniquely Australian songs took on societal issues with fiery determination and a musical conviction that continues to connect on a global scale. I don't want to say there will never be another Midnight Oil because the world will always need a band like Midnight Oil – now, more than ever."

On hearing news of the honour the Oils said in statement:

"Midnight Oil is proud to receive the Ted Albert

Award for 2018. It's a great honour for our band. Ted's great skill was his knack for picking talent, his genuine love for original Australian music, and the creation of his legendary production house – which has become a by-word for excellence and success. Midnight Oil's connection to Alberts began in 1978, when the band – in between playing sweaty pub gigs in and around Sydney – recorded our first album at the Boomerang House studio in King St ('Whoah! A band that eats!' said Harry Vanda, when he caught us scoffing burgers). Nine years later we were back at Alberts, this time at Neutral Bay, to record Diesel and Dust – an album inspired by the Australian desert and Top End communities, but which opened doors for us right around the world."

The 2018 APRA Music Awards were held on Tuesday 10 April.

Midnight Oil are:

Rob Hirst – Drums + Vocals
Martin Rotsey – Guitar
Peter Garrett – Lead Vocals
Jim Moginie – Guitar, Keyboards + Vocals
Bones Hillman – Bass + Vocals
Andrew James – Bass (Founding member to 1980)
Peter Gifford – Bass + Vocals (1980 to 1986)
Gary Morris – Manager (1976 to 2013)

MORAYFIELD SPORTS SCORES $7.8 MIL UPGRADE

Slam dunk for MSEC

The Morayfield Sport and Events Centre (MSEC) is currently an indoor three court multi-purpose complex but that's all about to change as Moreton Bay Regional Council has just announced a major $7.8 million upgrade for MSEC as part of a plan to attract major sporting events and trade shows to the popular indoor hub, and boost the region's $1.78 billion tourism, hospitality and accommodation industry.

Mayor Allan Sutherland said the multimillion-dollar upgrade would see MSEC more than double its existing footprint to 7,000m2 with the construction of two new multipurpose indoor courts and an 1,100m2 modular events space, which can be used for conferences and trade shows.

"Our region is fast-becoming a top destination for major sports events like the recent JLT Cup AFL matches at Burpengary and the Commonwealth Rugby League Championship at Redcliffe, and we want to replicate that success with indoor sports and events," Mayor Sutherland said.

The upgrade will also include retractable seating with capacity for more than 1,000 spectators, new changerooms and amenities, and commercial kitchen space.

"It's part of council's $75.9 million investment in parks, sport and recreation in 2017/18, and importantly, will generate local job opportunities both during and after construction."

Division 12 Councillor Adrian Raedel said the upgrade would accommodate the growing number of sporting clubs and community groups in the local area.

"Across the region, we expect the number of community and sports groups to increase by more than 50 per cent, which is why it's important to ensure our major facilities like MSEC are future-proof," Cr Raedel said.

"With Aussies like Ben Simmons and Joe Ingles taking the NBA by storm, basketball and other indoor sports continue to grow in popularity across the country, so I'm pleased that the project will deliver additional sporting facilities for our local clubs."

Construction will commence in coming May 2018, with works expected to be complete by mid-2019, weather permitting.

CALLING ALL CAKE BOSSES

The world's best cake artists are coming to town when Brisbane hosts the International Cake Show Australia, May 18-20

The International Cake Show Australia is once again coming to Brisbane in May and the second local outing promises all things cake, bake and decorating on a much grander scale in 2018.

Take for example the mammoth 3x3 metre Alice in Wonderland cake installation being created by a five person team of the nation's top cake creators.

Local cake star Zoe Byres (to the left and on our cover) is leading the team made up of sugar craft stars Helen Wilkinson (of Who did the Cake?), Annette Ibrahim (Bella Sofia Cakes), Trina Thomson (Sweet Ruby Cakes), Louisa Massignani (Cakes Alouisa). We had a peak through the looking glass when we spoke Zoe Byres of Cake art by Zoe (Eaton's Hill) about the event. And while we can't give any specific details about creation, that would be a spoiler, we can say they aren't taking the easy route.

There's a lot to draw on from the Alice-verse, Zoe said stylistically the creation will be somewhere in between Disney and manga.

"The theme is down the rabbit hole, we've chosen the scene where Alice is falling and we're going to recreate that in cake" Zoe said of the piece.

The ACADA (Australian Cake Artists & Decorators Association) International Cake Show Australia (ICSA) has its basis in competition. This year the competition categories range from wedding cake artistry to cupcake bouquet design, sculpted busts, sugar-crafting, celebration cakes, edible art and buttercream cakes. The more adventurous artists and decorators can enter the architectural tribute cake (in 2018 the theme is an iconic Australian structure) category, geometric and abstract categories, gravity defying creations and stylised and edible flower designs.

But there's a lot more to it, especially for those of on this side of the cake counter. Zoe says ICSA isn't just for people who are baking crazy like her, it's for everybody. Kids love it, naturally, besides an opportunity to hassle parents for sweet treats; the show provides spaces for kids to create, and for hobbyist cakes fans to learn new skills. For home bakers and professional creators the show also provides a space to learn from the pros in hands-on workshops and an opportunity to swap tips with likeminded creatives.

"There is going to be a lot of cake heavyweights there, but it's also about getting mum-bakers - those who make birthday cakes for their kids - to come along and experience it and see what's out there," Zoe said.

"There are so many skills and so many products to take in and the people involved are incredibly generous with their time, knowledge and experience.

Indeed, the opportunities to learn from the pros are enormous as the world's best cake artists head to Brisbane for the show. These are such big names in the cake world that a two-day cake-off challenge on the main stage will be televised live. Cake celebrities include six of the world's most famous cake artists including Paul Bradford, Dorothy Klerck, Timbo Sullivan, Verusca Walker, Margie Carter and Paul Delaney.

One of the world's most inspiring cake artists Karen Portaleo will be in attendance as one of the celebrity judging team (seriously, do a google images search on her name).

"I'm very excited to see Karen Portaleo, I have a little cake crush on her, I do get a little fangirl girl around her so hopefully I'll be able to keep myself calm. Also cake legends like Eddie Spence [That's Sir Eddie Spence, Master of Royal Icing] and Paul Bradford and (megastar) Timbo Sullivan, who's workshop I'll be taking," Zoe said.

There's a wealth of Aussie talent in attendance too.

"There are many locals that I'm excited to see. There is so much talent within Australia and this is an opportunity to pull us all together to have all my cake friends from all over the country together in Brisbane is pretty special."

The international event will feature celebrity cake artists, chocolatiers, chefs and bakers appearing throughout the three days, the live international superstar cake-off on the main stage, a Haute Couture Wedding Marquis featuring Australia's most awarded wedding cake designers, hands-on make create, make and take zones and classes.

There will also be epically grammable world class statement pieces to see and selfie with as well as serious learning opportunities, feature booths where cake artists/chocolatiers will be building live installations and industry pop up shops where everything you need for your home or business baking needs will be available.

International Cake Show Australia CEO, Joan McDermott said the event is set to become a new cultural tourism attraction for Australia, a brilliant cross between food, design, colour and competition.

"The International Cake Show Australia is all about creating magic, defying possibilities and breaking boundaries. For the millions who watch Cake Boss and follow the hundreds of thousands of edible artists on social media, this event is the penultimate experience, and to have it staged here in Brisbane as the national showpiece is certainly a coup for the city," she said.

The three day show runs from Friday 18th to Sunday 20th May at the Brisbane Showgrounds Exhibition Building in Bowen Hills.

Adult One Day Entry costs $24, there are student and pensioner concessions available ($15) and a three day pass at $50.

Full program, more info and tickets are available now from www.acada.com.au

WHY DO SOME PEOPLE REJECT HELP?

Hi Leonie,

I love reading your column and I always learn something new. You have a really forthright, gutsy Australian way of helping which I and my partner admire a great deal.

My partner and I are both 62 years old. You are a helping person and I have a helping question. I feel that I am a natural counsellor. Even though I don't have a degree I know what I am taking about. I am streetwise and have lots of common and good horse sense and I am very "Switched on".

I feel that I can be a great mentor for young people but my help is always rebuffed. I will try to help young people at work who are obviously in trouble, taking lots of sick days, playing face book and text sending on the job and I know they will get the sack if I don't help them.

One young girl of 23 is doing marijuana and drinking. She often has the Pink Eye look about her, but she just tells me off with very rude language when I try to give her some very good and obviously much needed guidance.

At 62 years of age hubby and I have stacks of life experience between us but his daughters (32 and 35) who have lots of failures tell me that I am an interferer and that I should mind my own business.

Really we just want to help. These girls lost their mother over ten years ago to bowel cancer and I wonder why they don't take advantage of my willingness to mother them.

Why do you think some people will get counselling and others will not have a bar of it? How can I impress on my partners daughters that I can really help and that I want to help?

Happy to help/Mango Hill

Hi,

Well firstly, I think that most people would want to get counselling from a qualified person who is actually a counsellor and not a self-proclaimed counsellor. It is wonderful that you have a caring nature and are willing to help others. However, helping has to be offered appropriately and without training you may be doing more harm than good.

Giving help is much like giving any gift. By this I mean that the person has to be willing to accept it. When people go to a counsellor, they are usually ready to get qualified help, recognise that what they are doing is not working for them and they usually have the willingness to try new options and have a desire to bring about change. Change in themselves and change in their circumstances.

If you offer to help someone and they reject this help, any further pressure from you could well be seen as bullying and interference. Clearly, your partners children do not want you to be involved in their affairs so the respectful and responsible thing to do is to respect their wishes and mind your own business. I understand that when you offer something of yourself to someone and it is rejected, it can be hurtful but you must respect that person's right to not involve you in the management of their life.

I feel that you are being less than "Switched on" to assume that because a mother is deceased that this means that her role is up for grabs. Who are you to declare that these ladies have lots of failures? Everyone has ups and downs in their lives and labelling the experiences of others is not fair or appropriate. These girls are adults whose mother has died and by the sounds of things they have never advertised for a replacement. Many people would feel that you are being hurtful and crossing many boundaries here.

I also wonder why you feel that it is your role to rescue your younger colleagues. If these youths get the sack for behaving irresponsibly then so be it. There is an argument to be made that letting people learn from their mistakes is the best schooling of life there is. In any case if you are not the supervisor or the owner of the company and are not carrying their workload, it is none of your business. If you are left to carry the workload of others, then it would be appropriate to speak to management to resolve this issue.

There can be a number of reasons why people reject help.

- People may feel insulted and perceive you as a "know it all" and that you feel that they are not capable of dealing with their own issues.
- They may feel patronised or spoken down to.
- They may think that it is weakness of character to ask or receive help from others.
- They may have religious or cultural beliefs around where they should go for help and see any offer outside this framework as intrusion or a trespass of privacy.
- They may feel that they may incur some kind obligation to you or that they would be "beholding" and refuse to put themselves in that position
- They may feel that if they accept your help that they will be vulnerable or have to hear all about how you 'helped them out' for a long time.
- They may not like or respect you and feel that you are in no position to help others

If you really want to help others, perhaps you could complete a Cert IV in Youth Work and volunteer to help underprivileged youth. In this way you will be helping in an educated way and appropriate way. In the mean time I would encourage you to start being respectful of others and of how they choose to live their lives.

MUSCLE RACERS MEET AT PERFORMAX NORTH LAKES

It was horsepower heaven when muscle-car competitors in the Performax Cup TransAm 2 national motor racing series lined up side by side at Permormax last Friday, but the next time they meet it won't be so friendly.

The three spectacular 525 horsepower racers visited North Lakes' headquarters of American vehicle importer Peformax International to celebrate the company's new naming sponsorship of the series and their next event at Queensland Raceway on 21- 22 April.

On display were a Chevrolet Camaro driven Ashley Jarvis, a Ford Mustang driven by Anthony Tenkate and a Dodge Challenger driven by Peter Robinson.

The Performax TransAm 2 Cup will be contested over six rounds this season. Round 2 will be at the Ipswich Festival of Cars meeting at Queensland Raceway on 21- 22 April.

Performax International has been Australia's leading importer and convertor of American sports cars and pick-up trucks for almost 30 years and opened their HQ in North Lakes in February 2016. The company was founded in Gympie in 1989 by Greg Waters and Brian Learoyd, who still operate the company. Their car hobby became a big business.

Performax has around 65 employees at its production line in Gympie and sales/service/parts HQ in North Lakes.

Their bread and butter business is converting new American pick-ups to right-hand drive - complying with our Federal regulations - and sells them throughout Australia via an authorized dealer network. These striking mega-utes sell for between $100k and $200k.

There's another special visitor arriving at performax soon - the Performax Black Ops, a giant, upspecced, all black F-250 with military inspiration. We'll let you know when it arrives. You'll definitely want to see it.

REDCLIFFE RELAY FOR LIFE

Team up for to make a difference

Cancer Council Queensland is calling on the community to lace up and walk towards a cancer free future at Redcliffe Relay For Life.

Registrations are open for the charity's 2018 event, set to be held on October 13-14 at Pelican Park, Clontarf.

Cancer Council Queensland CEO Ms Chris McMillan encouraged locals to make a difference by teaming up for the cause.

"Each year the community bands together to give hope to Queenslanders affected by cancer, and we hope the locals will do the same this year," Ms McMillan said

"We currently have around 50 participants registered for Redcliffe Relay, but we need many more people to get involved and show their support.

"Get your friends, family or colleagues together for a team - together, we can stop cancer in its tracks!"

Redcliffe Relay For Life is an 18 hour event where teams keep a baton moving in a relay style walk or run overnight, in support of Cancer Council Queensland's vital work in cancer research, prevention programs and support services.

Teams also take part in inspirational ceremonies, fundraising activities and team challenges, supporting each other and sharing stories of hope.

Ms McMillan said getting involved in Relay For Life made a lasting difference to locals affected by cancer.

"More than 10,100 people are diagnosed with cancer in greater Brisbane region every year," she said.

"Every step taken, and every dollar raised at Redcliffe Relay For Life funds our work, and in turn, provides vital support and care for all Queenslanders every minute, every hour, every day."

Early bird registrations are $20 per person. To register a team, volunteer or find out more, visit www.relayforlife.org.au or call 1300 65 65 85.

More information about Cancer Council Queensland is available via www.cancerqld.org.au or 13 11 20.

DOCTORS HAVE ETHICAL OBLIGATION TO CONSIDER E-CIGARETTE USE FOR PATIENTS

Growing evidence of the effectiveness of e-cigarettes as a quitting aid means doctors should consider recommending them as a less harmful alternative for patients who have repeatedly failed to stop smoking tobacco with approved treatments, a new study concludes.

The review of the latest scientific evidence on e-cigarettes, by UNSW Conjoint Associate Professor Colin Mendelsohn, is published in the Internal Medicine Journal of the Royal Australian College of Physicians.

E-cigarettes are battery-powered devices that heat and vapourise a liquid to deliver nicotine to reduce the urge to smoke. Their use replicates the habits and rituals of smoking without the harmful tar, carbon monoxide and other toxic chemicals from burning tobacco.

Recent studies in populations in the US and UK, where e-cigarettes are legal and widely available, have found that their use, called vaping, is associated with higher success rates of quitting smoking than amongst non-users. The highest success rates occur with newer e-cigarette models and daily use of nicotine e-liquid, rather than intermittent use.

A 2016 report by the Royal College of Physicians in the UK concluded the health risk from long-term vaping was unlikely to exceed 5% of the harm from smoking tobacco.

Another study found that vaping results in a dramatic reduction in carcinogens and other toxicants measured in the blood and saliva of e-cigarette users, compared to tobacco smokers.

"E-cigarettes are battery-powered devices that heat and vapourise a liquid to deliver nicotine to reduce the urge to smoke. Their use replicates the habits and rituals of smoking without the harmful tar, carbon monoxide and other toxic chemicals from burning tobacco."

Other research cited in Mendelsohn's review found that smokers who switch to vaping have significant health improvements, including improvements in asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, blood pressure, cardiovascular health, lung function and pneumonia risk.

"Medical practitioners have a duty of care to provide the best possible management at each encounter," says Associate Professor Mendelsohn, of the UNSW School of Public Health and Community Medicine.

"With-holding a legitimate treatment option that could prevent a life-threatening illness is a breach of that obligation.

"For patients who have repeatedly failed to quit smoking with conventional strategies an e-cigarette is a legitimate, evidence-based option for reducing harm. Their use could lead to substantial improvements in public health in Australia," he says.

Vaping is currently being legalised in Canada and New Zealand, but a federal parliamentary majority (five out of eight) report last week recommended that a ban on the sale of nicotine-containing e-cigarettes in Australia be retained.

However, a minority report concluded their use by smokers who have tried and failed other ways of quitting "could save many thousands of lives" and that they should be available "as a consumer good to Australians".

Doctors can currently prescribe nicotine e-liquids for therapeutic purposes such as quitting smoking, with the patients importing three months' supply of nicotine at a time from overseas, allowing the patient to use the product legally.

"In Australia between 2013 and 2016, the smoking rate has not declined significantly for the first time in decades, despite very high cigarette prices, plain packaging and strict tobacco control laws," says Associate Professor Mendelsohn.

"However, in countries where which support vaping, smoking rates are continuing to fall, faster than ever, in some cases."

After quitting smoking, it is preferable for people to aim to cease vaping, within three to six months if possible, but long-term use of e-cigarettes is safer than relapsing to smoking, he says.

YOUR STARS

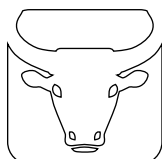

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: You gave your word. But honouring it may cost you an opportunity. Sit down and explain the situation. It may take a few tries.

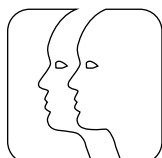

Pisces Feb 20- March 20: A wrench will be thrown into the best laid plans. Work with it as best you can. It could even be an improvement.

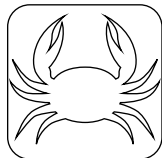

Aries March 21- April 20: Add two weeks to what's already on the go and you will emerge mid April with your sanity intact.

Taurus April 21- May 21: Loose lips do more than sink ships. They torpedo entire armadas. Steer clear of any off the record conversations.

Gemini May 22-June 21: Have contingency plans ready. Anything straightforward will prove to be otherwise.

Cancer June 22-July 23: You'll have to prove that this time you're serious about making changes. It's a bit humbling, but it wins you staunch support in the end.

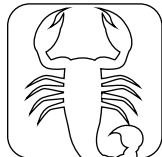

Leo July 24-Aug 23: Adopting the ostrich policy isn't wise because your blind spot is in plain view for everybody else. Best to confront unpleasantness head on.

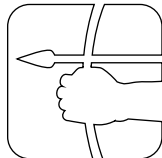

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: You hold the key to the house of secrets. Luckily, it's others who should worry about their loose lips. Take notes. They'll come in handy.

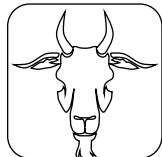

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: Most believe you have to push to get ahead. You prefer a clam, gentle approach; it ensures everyone still likes you when you reach the top.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: You can't expect to make changes without rearranging priorities first. Go ahead and give it a shot. It's not as painful as it looks.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: It's easy to blame the curmudgeon in the room. This person's a downer. But they didn't make things go awry. That would be someone else.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: Why tolerate a delay when you're close to making a deal? Because you don't want to force a fit. A last minute wrinkle works to your benefit.

NORTH LAKES COMMUNITY WOMEN'S GROUP INC. NEWS

April's Guest Speaker was Rachael Speechley, Volunteer Support Officer from Meals on Wheels. It was such an eye-opener to learn that Meals on Wheels is so much more than just the delivery of hearty meals to those in need. They also cater for events at a reasonable price as well as sell frozen meals that can be purchased by anyone in the local community. Many ladies in our Group were very interested in all of these services and will be taking advantage of them.

Following morning tea we enjoyed a "Getting to Know You" Bingo game. It's so lovely to find out more about our terrific group of ladies - so many hidden talents and stories to tell.

Tuesday 24th April - A 9am start for us today as we are very privileged to have been invited to attend a sneak preview of the new North Lakes Hotel. After our tour we will head to the North Lakes Sports Club for lunch. Members only.

Tuesday 1st May - 9.45am May General Meeting. We will also be joined by a Guest Speaker from the Lions Club of North Lakes who will speak to us about how they are supporting the Australian Lions Children's Mobility Foundation by holding their inaugural "Walk for an Aussie Kid" event at Lake Eden. Visitors welcome.

Tuesday 8th May - 9.45am Guest Speaker, Rochelle Courtenay, from Share the Dignity. We will also be having a special Mothers Day morning tea and drawing our Mothers Day Raffle. Visitors welcome.

Our meetings are open to all women in North Lakes/Mango Hill-Moreton Bay District. For more information please contact Trish 0447 071 221 or Sue 0418 785 944.

LIFE EXPECTANCY VARIES BY WHERE YOU LIVE

"The greatest improvements were seen in Brisbane North, Brisbane South, Darling Downs and West Moreton, and Western Queensland"

How long you can expect to live and your likelihood of dying from a preventable cause varies by where you live, according to a report from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare (AIHW).

The report, Life expectancy and potentially avoidable deaths, 2013–2015, reveals that while life expectancy is rising in Australia generally, this is not the case for all local communities.

'Overall, Australians born in 2013–2015 can expect to live 82.4 years, up from 82.1 years for those born in 2011–2013. Life expectancy has also risen across most local communities, but substantial variation remains across Primary Health Network (PHN) areas,' said AIHW spokesperson Claire Sparke.

Those living in Northern Sydney can expect to live the longest, at 85.5 years, while the Northern Territory had the shortest life expectancy, at 77.7 years.

The greatest improvements were seen in four Queensland PHN areas (Brisbane North, Brisbane South, Darling Downs and West Moreton, and Western Queensland), with life expectancy rising by 0.6 years between 2011–2013 and 2013–2015, while Gippsland (Vic) recorded the largest fall, down by 0.5 years.

Overall, communities located in metropolitan areas had higher life expectancies than those in regional areas.

A similar pattern was also seen when looking at potentially avoidable deaths. These are deaths that occur prematurely—before the age of 75—from causes that might have been preventable or treatable. There were almost 80,000 potentially avoidable deaths in Australia in 2013–2015, accounting for 17% of all deaths over this period.

'Nationally, the rate of potentially avoidable deaths improved, from 117 deaths per 100,000 people in 2009–2011, to 108 in 2013–2015. But again, when looking at regional and metropolitan areas—and across local communities—discrepancies were found,' Ms Sparke said.

The rate of potentially avoidable deaths was higher in regional areas than in metropolitan areas, with particularly notable results seen again in Northern Sydney and the Northern Territory.

Northern Sydney had the lowest rate of potentially avoidable deaths of 62 deaths per 100,000 people, while the rate was highest in the Northern Territory at 226.

The rate of potentially avoidable deaths declined in most local areas between 2009–2011 and 2013–2015, with the most notable improvement seen in Western Queensland, falling from 213 to 194 deaths per 100,000 people.

'However, the rate of potentially avoidable deaths increased in some PHN areas, with the greatest increase recorded in the Northern Territory, from 219 to 226 deaths per 100,000 people,' Ms Sparke said.

'Publishing local results can help local health service providers and policymakers better understand what's happening in their community, and where improvements can be made,' Ms Sparke said.
